Introduction

Teaching profile

Learning outcomes

The aim of the minor in musicology is to give students of all disciplines basic training in musicology and thus to introduce them to the world of music, culture and contemporary musical composition. According to the proposed 30-credit program, any interested student can acquire skills in music history and science. The program is geared both towards the history of music as well as the more contemporary issues of musical language, sociology, analysis and aesthetics. The course thus provides training which encourages openness and dialogue with today's musical world whilst still providing the student with the rigor of classical musicological university training.

Admission

This minor is open to all Bachelors wishing to learn about the music world. There are no prerequisites and students do not necessarily need to be musicians.

For further information, see the summary table showing the different minors open to students on each Bachelor's programme.

Teaching method

The courses make use of a variety of teaching techniques and strategies (lectures, group work, individual work, seminars, reading etc.) which help students to acquire the necessary skills. Certain courses also use e-learning techniques (provision of resources and exercises, teaching devices, collective sharing and assessment of work).

Evaluation

The evaluation methods comply with the regulations concerning studies and exams. More detailed explanation of the modalities specific to each learning unit are available on their description sheets under the heading "Learning outcomes evaluation method".

According to the type of course, there are different forms of assessment. Certain courses have traditional oral and/or written assessments (which take place in the examination periods in January, June and August/September), while seminars involve student participation throughout the semester and the assessment of individual work. Further details on the assessment method are given at the beginning of each course.

Course examinations on communication skills are designed to test performance, that is to say practical use of the language in meaningful situations, which demonstrate students' level of ability.

Teaching activities are assessed in accordance with the rules currently in force at the University (see General Examination Regulations). Students may also find additional information on the particular methods of assessment in the course descriptions.
